RED MOUNTAIN PARTY - SPECIAL EDITION -

Folks, some late arrival news & photos that jest have to be shown to believe the goings on up the hill in that crazy town of Red Mountain where Spike has all his lil'folk friends. These photos arrived late to the Sub-Standard, comin' on the so called "Cannonball Express" so we'z publishin' em a tid bit late but nun the less they'll explain the adventures & extreme hazards our wunderfool posse had to deal with up dare in the high kuntry.

First of all we kin show yo'all that devil of a whorse dressed up as the elk that started the whore'll Outlaw escape plan, Myrtle by the way has a price on her head too now. Here she is - boy does she look tasty. And then she dragged a case of fresh DW's just in front of the deputy's keepin' watch outside the jail, coor's they got drunk straight away didn't they!

Myrtle snuck around & kicked the door & the Outlaw got the rops from the saggel & as y'all know the bars pulled out & then the Outlaw escaped. But wot y'all dun don't know is what happened in the mean time Them folk found the Purgatory boxcar full of "you-no-wots" tep, chock-a-block full of dem sweet DW's & the R.M. Mayor, Con Sensus, decided the town should have a celebration party rite there & then, or he know'd he'd a bin shot dead!

Well, let this reporter tell you they nose how to party up here, yes'siree's them sure do. Why

Wicked Wanda's that sits on the hill overlookin' the depot & the wye has never entertained so many in such a short time, the girls were plum exhausted from all the pourin' of drinks from the two special sour-mash tank cars parked on the front lawn. And the stash of DW's from the Purgatory boxcar why it was spread in every direction as far as the eye coud see. The jug band climbed up onto the balcony with the new banister rail & struck up the tune "Mudhen's pulling up a staircase to heaven" which brought a tear to the Brewer's eye.

Fairdinkum, the grog was thicker than molasses' on a corn-cob in a red-neck's chewing cheeks!

Snappy to sum shots at lookin' to get jest the right angle!

Toyman & Barkeep had one of the girls up on the table entertainin' em while Professor & Scoop sucked on the sour-mash that's brewed in a special contraption to put out fire!

"They sure know how to make good-um firewater", sez Chief Suntraxx

Is it any wonder nobody was lookin' to see if the Outlaw was still locked up, I mean, who would think of leavin' a party with free beer that had bin recovered from the bloke who stole it? Celebratin' is what life is all about in these parts & the cares of the outside world have bin lost after the first swig. Pianoman & Spike each had a piano on the bordellos porch & they played together, & of coors had some lovely ladies for kumpany & Madam Lash sung "Bad girls have more fun" with a chorus of Wanda's girls sing yes, yes, yes, in the background.

Sparky's San Juan Pharmacy

Why even the Jackelopes joined in the fun & Sparky couldn't figure out why his microphone tasted so good until Inspector told him he had plugged the cable into the sour-mash tank behind him. This was sum party & the Mayor stood atop the stairs & declared "May all our Christmas's be this good."

So, now you know what went on up there in the high country & a picture never lies & the stories that go with them just colour them a touch more. Merry Christmas to all.
